“ Mrs. Gann taught music when I was in HS at Talihina. We had music in an old house across from the school. A boy , who was mischievous, said "there's a tornado coming" Mrs. Gann told him to sit down and be quiet. The boy looked out the window again and said "Oh sh.. there comes a tornado" this time Mrs. Gann looked out the window and there was a tornado seen. She really didn't know what to do with us, so she told us run to the school. 1976. May not have got this exactly right been awhile. Really liked Mrs. Gann.

Mrs. Gann was also my music teacher in grade school. Ive wondered about her from time to time. One thing about her was she was very stern and consistant and she wasnt afraid to get loud with u. If she had to get onto u more then two times u can dang well bet that u were gona go to the corner or u were gona go stand in the hallway till class was over. She was all around a dang good teacher. Her family is in my prayers. May she R.I.P.

Very classy lady! She was the music teacher in Whitesboro when I attended there in 1969. I will never forget the wonderful impression she made on this old Texas girl. That particular year they did a talent show and it was awesome! Some boy my age sang "On The Streets of Laredo" and I had never heard that song before. Mrs. Gann was so proud of him especially when the gym exploded in applause as he sat there grinning with his guitar and cowboy hat! Mrs. Gann was a genuine person with a love for music and every student that she taught knew that. She was truly a gift to this small town community. Rest In Peace Sweet Mrs. Gann.
