“ Lloyd called every day, sometimes 3 and 4 times a day. We talked about his son and how he missed him. He was so proud of his grandchildren and what they had accomplished. He was excited about the birth of his great granddaughter. His wish was to hold her. I always asked about his blood sugar, did he take his insulin, and was he watching what he ate. He always told me that we would all die some day and he might as well enjoy and eat what he wanted. I didn't disagree. He called last Friday night, Oct. 29th. That was the last conversation I had with him. When he didn't call Saturday and Sunday, I knew something was wrong. I will miss our talks but will miss his friendship forever.

Lloyd always took credit for me and my husband meeting and falling in love. He would always say " I got you guys together, thank you and then laugh." Great guy always had a good visit, we knew he was having memory problems, but that never interfered with our visit. Lloyd will be missed by many, his great smile and laugh is a great memory.
