“ Such a pleasure so see that so many contributors were Nick's teachers. My parents were educators also. To them, Nick was there first great grand son, the only one they knew before their deaths. To me, Nick was a child with great imagination. I also listened to his stories about the things he had read, imagined and experienced. So many times I was somewhat tired of listening but his things had so much excitement that I was simply happy to hear his happiness to share them. I knew Nick more when was very young, when he went to Bethel School and then Buffalo Valley. I would take him to school and then pick him up and hear about his times that day. We would fish at Lake Eufaula and we went to air shows and other interesting things and events in the area. I miss not knowing Nick well as a grown adult but we were getting closer to that recently. I watched when he was born and will miss him very much now. I will remember and miss you Nick, God speed to the next adventure. I already miss you.

Love you, Grandpa Don

“ There are so many memories that come to mind when I think of Nick. I don't think I could pick just one to share. He was a huge part of my family over the years and we are going to miss him dearly. It really won't be the same with out him calling and talking for hours.

“ One of my favorite things about Nick was his smile. He always had a spirit of cooperation when it came to his friends. Nick made my classroom enjoyable every day. He always made every effort to excel. The loss of such a young life is heartbreaking. Sending many healing prayers for his family and friends. 🙏

“ Nick was an amazing person. He was incredibly smart, but so kind and considerate of others. He was incredibly loyal and respectful, and brilliant, and focused. Everyone wanted to be Nick's friend. As other teachers have already mentioned, Nick was a huge pleasure to teach, and was both impressive as a student and a human being. I had not seen much of him, these past few years, life goes fast, and kids are off busy, growing up, and growing out. His graduation from Buffalo Valley is a highlight in my memory. I reached out to Nick when Candace passed away. Immediately it was as if no time had passed. Nick was, as ever; gracious, kind, considerate. My heart was broken for him. He showed such incredible strength and heart. We made plans to keep in touch. If only I had known how little time there was! He used the short years of his life to build connections, be a great friend, demonstrate sparkling wit and laughter, receive others with a warm kindness, and achieve so many of his own goals. Nick was something special. We all knew it. He would have tried to shrug that off. Each of us is better for having known and loved such a fine young man. May his memory always be a blessing.

“ Years ago I walked into Buffalo Valley School to begin a substitute teacher position. Little did I know that the entire staff and students would teach me!! They taught me that regardless of your past, you are worthy! They instilled the feeling of family even if your not biologically related. Nick was one of the best examples of family even if your not biologically related. He loved everyone. He loved life and he loved making people smile. He was serious with a side helping of humour. Rest in peace Nick. And thank you for being my "family".

“ Many years back I was blessed to teach Nick at at Buffalo Valley. He was always smiling and kind to everyone. Reminded me strongly of myself as a kid. Can't tell you how much this breaks my heart.
